Duo Gitarowy Wieczorek

In March, Poland's premier classical guitar duo makes a welcome return to Cornwall. Husband and wife Franciszek and Katarina Wieczorek (who is originally from Slovakia) are multiple international prize winners and founder members of the world-famous Silesian Guitar Octet. Our very own Ben Salfield caught up with them for a chat about their upcoming concerts:

Ben: It'll be great to have you back in Cornwall. When we were together in Poland before Christmas, you said that your concerts over here are some of your favourites. What is it you like so much about Cornwall?

Franciszek: There is a warmth about the Cornish audiences that makes them really very special. They are not like the audiences anywhere else in the world we have played.

Katarina: It was always my dream to come to beautiful England. Then I was introduced to even more beautiful Cornwall. Every time we have visited, we look forward to the next time.

Ben: It is unusual to see guitarists play arrangements of classical music by such composers as Chopin. Where do you get inspiration for producing these kinds of duets?

Franciszek: We consider that we are musicians who happen to play guitar, not just guitarists. If we like beautiful music, we don't feel we should not play it, just because it originated on a different instrument.

Katarina: The Modran editions of our own and other people's arrangements for guitar comprise around twenty volumes now. We will play some pieces from these editions in Cornwall in March.

Ben: It's great to know how much you are looking forward to visiting, and I'm especially lucky, as you'll be staying with me and Charlotte! Do you have a message for your Cornish fans?

Katarina: Yes, please come and hear us play! We look forward to speaking to you and playing music for you!
